Burgundy, as Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire in 1486 (his coronation is described in the related fragment, MS 482.143). This text was written perpendicular to the legal document when the fragment was being used as a flyleaf.

Nota quod pallium arciepiscopale ... Ego episcopus.

A brief description of how one is to celebrate the feast of a newly canonized saint, and a brief metaphorical discussion of the Church hierarchy as a body with Rome as its head.

Parchment. 1 folio (partial). 286 x 205 mm (original dimensions uncertain). 1 column. 30 lines (original document). Dry-point ruling.

Written in a cursive gothic script (littera cursiva), similar to that of the scribe who wrote the document in MS 482.143. The document begins with a flourished initial. There is no punctuation.

The fragment was used as the front flyleaf in the binding of Beinecke Library, Zi +4486, copy 2 (compilation of HC *6924, Hain 3567=GKW 4818, and Hain 11759). It was taken out of the volume before 1946, when the book was acquired by Yale. The book formerly belong to the Poor Clares at Brixen; an inscription on the verso, which was used as the recto when the fragment was a flyleaf, reads "Iste liber est sororum ordinis sancte clare in brixina ~" To this a later hand has added "H. 46." A fifteenth-century note reads "Anno a natiuitate domini 1460 a magistro heinrico carthusiensi edita siue compilata est Cronica quam fasciculum temporum appelauit." The Fasciculus Temporum is contained in Beinecke Library, Zi +4486, copy 2, the contents of which are noted in partially erased 20th-century pencil notations on the verso.
